AmploFly4.0™, stands alone in its approach... and its effectiveness.

Measure and score your strategy readiness for Industry 4.0.

Through our proprietary scoring mechanism that consolidates internal and outside-in data, a mid-market precision manufacturing company was able to measure its preparedness to achieve Industry 4.0 efficiencies.

Improve your company's competitive awareness substantially.

Improved access to industry trends and opportunities has enabled an array of our clients, large and small and across multiple verticals, to better position themselves for future success.

Self direct your company's strategy, execution and ability to achieve efficiencies previously unattainable.

By taking control of their own capability modeling experience, a mid-market automotive discovered inefficiencies within their 19 plants that they were previously unaware of, resulting in increased profitability.

Recharge your company culture by becoming more efficient, more agile and more collaborative than ever before possible.

By measuring their baseline AS IS and their aspirational TO BE, a respected non-profit organization generated a holistic change in their internal and external user adoption which in turn improved company synergy.

Enjoy a more collaborative experience for product, operational and sales management.

A motorcycle manufacturer twinned its future bike product readiness to measure the delta between existing resources and those needed to take the new model to market.

Measure, connect and refine all strategic programs within your organization.

A mid-market semiconductor business realigned their programs and processes based on the roadmap they reengineered at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Shift funds to innovation.

Through vertical integration of their production operations and the machines/assets manufactured by its vendors, a respected automotive supplier was able to cut production costs. Monies saved helped fuel further innovation.

Fuel new business and revenue models.

A large energy company measured their distribution line of business going forward and discovered excess energy existed in each grid. To best prepare to launch into energy trading, they then measured their market entry readiness as it pertained to potential trading partners.

Create and respond appropriately to accurate, ongoing “what-if” scenarios.

A disruptive CPG company refined the parameters of a new product by engaging in a “what if / Monte Carlo” simulation.

Minimize your company’s need for expensive third party management consulting firms.

A respected international company canceled the services of two top tier consulting firms, opting instead for the self-directed cloud-based platform offered by Amplo Global with outstanding results.

Take much greater control of your company’s today and tomorrow.

By measuring the digital maturity of their processes, platforms and people, organizations across multiple verticals have better planned future adoption of advancing technologies like blockchain, IoT and data monetization.

Benefit from exceptional ROI and ROX.

To the satisfaction of their team, and their CFO, a health sciences organization better addressed risk management, improved compliance and increased cash flows by measuring and refining their services supply chain and forward distribution.
